POETRY.

Pale—ghtt'ring—Spirit of the twilight Heav'n!
Fair Lamp of Love!—unutterably bright
Like a sweet dream—thou comest forth at ev'n, Gemming the dewy coronal of night.

The Pilgrim lingers by the silent stream, And to thy azure temple meekly turns— The mourner feels the magic of thy beam, Soothing, with thy soft ray, the brow that burns.

And while I gaze on thee, I feel renew'd The fond imaginings of happier hours, Vhen Life—a dreary desert now—was strew'd With Hope—and all its fresh and fairy flow'rs.

Sweet, placid tenant of the sunset fleav'n. How oft beneath thy calm, untroubled ray I've wandered forth, at hush of silent ev'n, With one whose thoughts are now far, far away.

And though pale Cynthia's light unclouded shone, (From her proud palace in the distant skies,)

Thy trembling beams were all enough for one Who only looked for light in her bright eyes.

'I'were vain to ask thee-for thou can'st not tell-Illimitable though thy sphere may be—

If, treasured, in her gentle mem'ry dwell

Those fond, but fleeting, moments pass'd with me.

Sweet Star of Hope and Love, oh! still beam on (Herald of peace to hearts whom grief hath riv'n,)
Like that fair bow, which shines when storms are gone,
And, like thee, holds its tearful watch in Heav'n.

RECORDS OF A STAGE VETERAN.

A Northern Joke .- The respectably-dressed and well-looking young fellows in comedies are called walking gentlemen, and this is the probationary line of business usually assigned to young actors. When Mr Bcame to Edinburgh, being then very young and very careless, he incurred divers debts, for which the myrmidons of the law were troubling him; on such occasions it was his wont to run off to a place called the Sanctuary, within the precincts of which a debtor's person is unasailable; scarcely a day passed but Mr Bmight be seen flying along the streets with an officer after him. All this damnified the respectability of the establishment, and at last the manager told his comedian that he wanted a walking and not a running gentleman, and they must part. A man that cannot keep out of debt when he is receiving a good salary, has none, therefore poor B--- was soon in such a he applied to the manager to allow him to take a ben- ble, "did they let you play Richard twice in one efit; it was granted, and his creditors consented to let town?" him remain unmolested until the night was over. The house was well filled, the pieces chosen were "Folly as it flies," and "Catch him who can"-Mr Bwinding up the joke by absconding the moment the curtain fell. The manager was so annoyed that he paid the amount of Mr B--'s liabilities; but was as much surprised as pleased, a month or two afterwards, to receive the sum per post, with this laconic epistle-"With the heartfelt thanks and deep acknowledg-THE RUNNING GENTLEMAN."

Tria juncta in Uno .- When Cherry had the Richmond Theatre, three young gentlemen, who were stagestruck, "or moon-struck, or both," wanted to strut on his suburban stage. Cherry was adverse to the amateur system, and as they were really not worth paying salaries to, he compounded with his conscience, and gave the aspirants one guinea per week between them, this getting wind, his new coadjutors obtained the appellation of the three seven-shilling pieces. G. F. Cooke pellation of the three seven-shilling pieces. G. F. Cooke 127 Oysters direct from the South for one dollar per bushel. 127 the Tower; as usual something went wrong, Cooke raved, and the poor amateurs were blamed. The piece at the corner of Cambridge and Butolph streets, all kinds of over, the thing was forgotten, but at the close of the season Cooke was again to visit Richmond, and was in the city. arranging with Cherry the cast of characters. "King "'-"Mr so-and-so." Richmond ?"-"Mr Brunton." "Capital, that's something like a cast: Catesby, Sir, comes down with me. Tressel and the two others?"-"My three young men." "What, Sir, what? No, by Janus, no! Your three starved, sallow seven-shilling pieces! No, Sir, get them changed, or you have no George Frederick Cooke."

Mathews and Melvin.-Melvin, of whose eccentricities I spoke in my last, ere he had reached the climax of irregularity there detailed, lodged with Matthews in Stone Gate, York, at the house of Mr Wright, brothof Miss Macauley. Melvin and Mathews slept in adjoining rooms, divided by a thin partition, and it was "their wont" to rehearse their parts by speaking aloud from one room to the other; as they always studied at night, this made it anything but a peaceful dwelling, and when Melvin had at all exceeded in his potations, he would rehearse his combats too, cutting and slashing at everything in the room: at last the lodgers received peremptory notice to quit. Mathews, who at all periods of his life deserved and obtained the respect due to a gentleman, was much annoyed, and demanded the "Why, you see," quoth the Yorkshire landlord, "I dean't mind your ducks, and cows, and chickens, and sheep early in the morn, 'cause that's natural like; but Maister Melvin murders every night now, and my wife can't stand it." [In explanation of the first part of this sentence, it may be observed, that Matthews practised his imitations of quadrupeds a-bed.]

Mrs Wallack. - The greatest natural actress that ever trod the minor boards was the mother of James Wallack, doomed to utter the vilest trash ever offered to the public; forced to fetter her feelings with doggrel

"Oh! they have torn away my lovely daughter,
And they will drag her forth to death and slaughter."

She yet could create an interest, and stir her auditors with a power comparable only to Kean's. When James was an infant at her breast, she fitted up a cradle bed for him in the drawer of her dressing place; when off the stage she took her little charge to her bosomwhen called to her duties, popped her little hero into the drawer, and rushed forth to fight combats, spout balderdash, and ride chargers in the precious dramas (?) then acted at Astley's and the Royalty. Her daughter, known many years as Mrs Stanley of Cobourg, was a feeble type of what her mother had been; in fact, it is not too much to say that Mrs Wallack was the Siddons

The Absent Man .- Old Thornton has been the hero of many a tale; his "absence of mind" was, I am convinced, not affected. The last instance I relate on the authority of Richer, the rope-dancer, and others, who were at Dover when it occurred (1800.)-Mrs Thornton was taking a three days trip to the land of frogs, and T., who remained at Dover, went to the post-office to inquire if there were any letters, when this colloquy occurred-

T._ "Any letters for me, Sir?"

Office Keeper .- "What name, Sir?" T.-"Dear me, in the multiplicity of my affairs I can't recollect ; I'll call again." Passing down the street, Richer met him, and saluted him with a "How d'ye do, Mr Thornton?" "Thank ye, Sir," replied the manager, "that's the very thing I wanted." He went back and claimed his Anneles—It is strange that Sheridan Knowles Should not have some rande his way as a dramstat, for Kean and Hagel taken the man, and reverenced his powers, so also did Charles Lanh, who addressed a sometic bin. Most the time that Matraria's "Bertrand" was first talked of, Knowles's name was reportation," was first talked of, Knowles's name was reportation, "was first talked of, Knowles's name was reportation," was first talked of, Knowles's name was reportation, "was first talked of, Knowles's name was reportation," was first talked of, Knowles's name was reported. out three inches before him.

Mrs. M'Gibbon, and "Jane Shore."-A poor woman, said to be ninety years of age, was waiting outside the doors of the Cheltenham theatre two hours before their opening, having walked eight miles to see "Jane Shore," and having the same distance to walk back after the performance. Mrs M'Gibbon, (who was to have enacted the heroine) deeming such devotion to the drama madness, asked her dresser, who narrated the circumstances, if the poor old creature had her intellects-"I don't know, Ma'am," said the girl, "she's gotton summut tied up in her pocket-handkerchief."

John Kemble and Claremont .- King John could joke occasionally; and Claremont was given pompously to recount his provincial triumphs. John entered seldom much chance of doing so when he receives the green-room as C. was telling an accident that had none, therefore poor B— was soon in such a befallen him (C.) the second time he played Richard at state that he could not move out of the sanctuary at all; Rochester. "What, my dear Sir," exclaimed Kemof New-York, testifies, that having been directed by Col. Samuel Thomson, the Superintendent, to enlarge an opening in the said foundation, it became necessary to cut away part of the stone work which had been laid in Lawrence's Rosendale Hydraulic Cement, since the month of June last past. I found this Cement to have acquired more hardness and tenacity than any stone work I ever had occasion to remove, being nearly equal to the same mass of solid rock. I will further state, that in my vocation I have removed stone work in Europe, that had stood thwards of two hundred years, and constructed of such as were considered the best materials, but, as above stated, I have never met with any wall of equal hardness and solidity, as that part of the Custom House foundation, though so recently constructed. I therefore recommend the said Cement as greatly superior to any other material I have met with, for iaying every description of stone or brick work.

mathematical and with the subpartent Feather Dressing.—The subscriber having the right of Reynoids's Patent Machine for Dressing oid and new Feathers, for the State of Massachusetts, and having put it in operation, he is ready to receive or ders from any who may favor him with a call.

The operation of the machine produces the following effect:
new feathers are dried of their excessive moisture and purified of their disagreeable and unpleasant odor. The same results are effected on old feathers, and besides they are restored to their original liveliness, even after they have been long com pressed together and rendered exceedingly uncomfortable for repose. They are also thoroughly cleaned of all the dirt, perspiration, and pestiferous gasses, which feathers long used must have imbibed, which cannot be otherwise than injurious to health, and which has never failed to excite the wonder of those who have witnessed the result.

As this is the first machine of the kind ever put in operation

DEMOCRATIC MEETING.

The Democratic Republicans of Boston, friendly to be National Administration, are requested to meet in the Old Common Council Room, (Court Square,) on TUESDAY EVENING, 28th instant, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing a delegate to the Baltimore

From the Boundary Gazette-Extra-IMPORTANT FROM FRANCE.

Calais, April 17, 1835. By the brig Mung, which arrived at St Andrews on Wednesday last, in 17 days from Liverpool, we learn that the French Chamber of Deputies have dissolved without making the appropriation for the pay-

The Mung brings Liverpool dates up to March 29sixteen days later than those received via New York or ment of the American Claim.

As the above news smells of gunpowder, the following from the New York Times will be read with interest at this moment :-

"We know of but one officer of rank in our navy who considers French ships worthy of comparison in point of efficiency with ours, and he saw them only in port. He has said sometimes that they were little inferior to ours, and again that they were quite equal or superior. But we have heard his stated opinions discussed by others of at least equal rank, experience and judgment, and they disagree entirely with them. They consider that in no case could a French vessel of any thing like equal force have any sort of chance against an American, and the reasons they give are conclusive. The crew of a French ship are not seamen; they are soldiers and conscripts. A few seamen are shipped for quartermasters and the like, and then a company, battalion or regiment, according to the size of the vessel. are drafted from the dock yard where they were taught the little they know of naval matters, to complete the crew. They have learned to pull a rope when put into their hands, they can manage a gun, and may carry on harbor duty well enough when well practised; but within their tight breeches, soldier coats, and knapsacks, what could such fellows do at sea in a gale of wind against a ship manned with thorough bred seamen!

Did you ever see them load a gun aboard a French ship? In their service the gun is not drawn in board, as in ours and the English, but the ports are made large so that a man may step outside, and resting his feet upon a projection provided for the purpose, reach forward and put in the cartridge-unless he is shot off with a musket, which in close action happens pretty often : rammer is then handed out to him, and thus a French gun is loaded. Now a 42 pound shot is not easily managed by one hand, especially when a ship rolls much, and with the chance of losing the man as well as the shot, firing is seldom either rapid or regular from a French man-of-war. There the officers are well suited to the men; they are not half paid, they are ill clothed, and very indifferently taught a profession in which their undaunted courage and gallantry can never compensate for want of skill and experience. They are not and never can become a naval people; they have no genius that way. They have not commerce enough to make them seamen, and the whole system of their service is radically bad. Think of a ship coming from Havre to New York without a chart of the coast that was the case with the Ceres, the last man-of-war brig that was here—the was which our news boat rescued from the ice and towed to the navy yard—and her bothering twenty-four days off the coast, was from no other reason than that she had no charts, and could not find the port. She was supplied by our officers here There the attachment of French seamen to the service is nicely illustrated by the fact that that brig hurried out to sea to prevent all the crew from abandoning her, as a score of them did!

Can such a be an "efficient navy?" What shadow of a chance could one of its ships have against an American ship with equal weight of metal! or why should the Potomac or Old Ironsides, having a good working breeze, and a decent sea on, shrink from a clinch with a French seventy-four ! Would three guns to two, or three hundred to two hundred, be actual disparity! The men whose "argument was fear," and who thought that the French Navy would sweep ours from the ocean, forgot all these things, as well as that we came out not second but from a war with a power whose naval force was four times more formidable than that of France .-Neither did they consider that with all her number of ships she has not and cannot obtain men enough to put half of them in commission. It is not at all certain that she can send a greater force against us than we shall be quite willing to meet. But in any case we have nothing to apprehend from a contest at sea, except what privateers may do against our commerce, and our people ought to see the question with other eyes than the imid ones of Mr Archer."

The Washington Correspondent of the Journal of Commerce, under date of the 21st inst. says-"Mr Barry, the Postmaster General, is about to leave his office and to visit some of the northern cities, preparatory to his journey to the West and his departure on a mission to Spain. This morning, the two Assistant Postmasters General called a meeting of the clerks of the office, at which Mr Hobbie announced the intended departure of Mr Barry, at the same time stating that he was to go into another branch of the public service. Resolutions were immediately adopted by the clerks, expressive of their regret at the departure of Mr Barry, and their gratitude for his kind and gentlemanlike deportment towards them, &c. It is well understood that Mr Kendall will immediately succeed Mr Barry. He will come into the office under great advantages, and will bring to it, I doubt not, all the diligence, energy, and, if you please, severity which have characterized his administration of the duties of Fourth Auditor.'

"Our city was never, perhaps, in a more prosperous state, or better able to raise money to meet the expenses and the debts to which it is liable, Money is plenty, labor is well remunerated, and business is productive. People can pay their debts and support their families, and give a little in charity, as readily as at any former period within the recollection of the most aged citi-

A Singular Affair.-The following history of the foundation of a stock in the markets of Portland and some other New England towns, called the Mar Stock, and in which considerable speculations have been made, is given in the Livingston (Maine) Record-

"The Earl of Mar .- This nobleman, who commanded the army of the Pretender in the Scottish rebellion of 1718, is said to have left a son and a daughter at Newcastle upon Tyne, when he and the unfortunate Prince made their escape into France. Soon after, the son, quite a boy, came to America and landed at Portsmouth, N. H., where he lived a short time, and finally married in Kittery, in this country. After the British government granted a pardon to the Ear!, with permission to return to his estate at Newcastle, he sent for his son, who went to England and had an interview with his father. It was agreed that the son should return to America, and accompany his wife to England, but circumstances of an extraordinary character detained him for two or three years in this country; at last he was suddenly taken sick and died.

He left six children, who settled in different parts of Maine and New Hampshire, from whom originated nearly all the family in this part of America who bear the name of Mar. The heirs have lately taken measures to recover the immense property left by the Earl of Mar in England, and have sent an agent to Newcastle upon Tyne for this purpose. The property is said to nount to the enormous sum of sixty or eighty millions

There is something more about this Mar Stockwhen it was first issued it sold for $40 per share, since when, we believe, it has risen to $100 or $150-bu the best of the joke is, that there is no limit to its issue-the Messieurs Mars have quite an extensive manufactory, but are unable to supply the demand. This beats the Canton Stock all hollow.

Cartoons of Raffaelle .- Four of the Cartoons of Raffaelle, executed on Tapestry from the original design, are now on exhibition at Harding's Gallery. School street. They represent Christ delivering the Keys to St Peter, Paul preaching at Athens, St Peter healing the Cripple at the gate of the Temple, and the death of Ananias, and were made at Brussells, about 300 years since, at a cost of 60,000 crowns. The exhibition of works like these, admitted on all hands to be master pieces of art, proves both useful and interesting -useful, as calculated to impress upon the mind the scenes they are intended to commemorate-and interesting, as showing the extent to which the talents of their celebrated author were cultivated. In conjunction with the above, there is exhibited a copy, by Philip Reinagle, A. R. S., of Ruben's sublime picture of the Crucifixion of Christ, of which a cotemporary very justly remarks, that whether we examine the grouping, the expression in the various countenances, the attitudes, crombie—a wag exclaimed, "Go it, ye cripples!" the anatomy, the coloring, the relation of the persons, the beauty of the horses, the foreshortening, the tone, or the awful general effect ;-it is such as seldom meets the public eye; and the devont Christian still more than the admirer of painting, may there meet with matter for profound meditation.

This exhibition is worthy of public patronage, and we have no doubt will be very generally visited by the citizens of Boston.

His colleague escaped. As the attempt on the watch fob was only an interence, Wood was simply arraigned for the assault; and rested his defence on an assertion that he was not the man. Fashion and freedom are terms of little agreement. You cannot be votaries to the one, and staunch supporters of the other; you cannot be slaves and freemen at the same time. If you surrender your independence in one respect, you will soon lose it in another. What you concede to-day, is exacted from you to morrow; one step leads to another-until you are no longer masters of yourselves. There is nothing which degrades men so much in their own estimation, as a slavish imitation of others. Look round and judge for yourselves, whether the men some of you would strive to imitate, are not rather the object of contempt and ridicule, than that of envy in others. Would you be mad enough to exchange your situations for their's? Are they more enlightened than you? Are they more virtuous, more moral, than you? Are they stronger friends in misfortunes? Do they love each other more than you do? Are they more willing to contribute to the expenses of the State? Are they more ready to defend their country against foreign invasion than yourselves? Do they cherish the liberties of their country more than you do? Not one of these questions can you answer in the affirmative. What, then, can you expect to gain from their society? Improve yourselves at home-in the bosom of your own families - where you have the best society,

THE THOMSONIAN SYSTEM.—
To WILLIAM HILLIARD, Esq.

Dear Sir—Believing you to take a deep interest in whatever tends to lessen or mitigate the evils, moral or physical, which humanity is subject to, and knowing you to have a good opinion of what is usually denominated the Thomsonian or Botanical system of medicine, having yourself been benefited by its bealing power—I take the liberty of brigging this subject to healing power-I take the liberty of bringing this subject to your notice.

The sickness of a friend who spent several weeks at the In-the Philadelphia Gazette, several boys who were playing around the track of the Columbia Railroad, on the approach of the burthen car, asked permission of the driver to ride, which being given, they mounted the car. When near Broad street the driver ordered them of hot refused to stop the car. Several boys leaped off in safety. The last, a son of Mr Willis H. Blaney, a boy of about ten years old, while attempting to descend the car, had his foot caught between the wheel and the rail. The car, weighing 3500 lbs, passed longitudinally over the foot, crushing it so dreadfully that amputation is considered inevitable. Several accidents of a like character have occurred on this road; something should be done to prevent a repetition of them.

The library of the capitel at Washington contains it a sound argument against Christianiny that it was cradled in a manger—that its first advocates were unlearned, illicrate men? Then, may it be objected to the Thomsonian system of medicine that its author was born beneath the lowly roof of a New England farm house, and that its early advocates were transpers to literature and science. Infidelity may card its lip in scorn at the simple story of the Savior's birth, and the Chris-

TREMONT THEATRE.

The vine sort, and i aroad men who lay claim to all the medical knowledge the world contains, may look down with contempt upon these new discoveries in the healing art, and still these invaluable medicines will go not effecting the se wonderful cures which prove them to be the best prediction for the body.

It has been often said to me when I have recommended this system to others. I have usually replied by giving them as many of the particulars in the following cases as time would permit. On Monday of the week, I first visited the Infirmary in October last, a young lady was brought there in a deplorable state of mental de augement from the Instine Hospital at Charlestown, where she had been under the best medical treatment which that institution affords for nine months, and was nothing better but rather grew worse. Two courses of medicine wrought apparently a perfect cure. On Mon'ay she presented the melancholy spectacle of a wild, raving manner—the next Saturday, she walked home calso, and in her right mind.

It was thought a visable that the should take another course, which she did on the following Monday, and the next day returned home, happy in the following manner. Said be, putting his hand to his stomach, there is a spot here about the sixe of the palm of my hand, where I constantly experience a very uneasy, unpleasant feeling—I cannot exactly call it pain, and yet I should also the processing the proving mental treely—constantly experience a very uneasy, unpleasant feeling—I cannot exactly call it pain, and yet I should always be constantly experience a very uneasy, unpleasant feeling—I cannot exactly call it pain, and yet I should always be the constantly experience a very uneasy, unpleasant feeling—I cannot exactly call it pain, and yet I should be a should as hard to bear. At times there comes on me, the first of March last, I put myself under the instruction of Mr King, and in three weeks, I found my etterance of the palm of my band, where I constantly experience a very uneasy, un of the paim of my hand, where I constantly experience a very uneasy, unpleasant feeling—I cannot exactly call it pain, and yet I is about as hard to hear. At times there comes on me, generally as often as once a day, a faint, sinking away feeling, and at the spot above named a gnawing, twisting sensation, accompanied with an intense hunger, at which time I usually eat the first food I could come at, but it did not satisfy my hunger or remove the pain. He said that he had for the last ten years expended more than a thousand dollars in trying to get relief, that he had been under the care of many different Physicians, and under the most eminent in the profession for a year of more at a time, but all in vain. He had long since give year or more at a time, but all in vain. He had long since giv-en up the expectation of ever being cured, and more in despair than is hope, at the recommendation of a friend, he came to the Infirmary, where he was cured in twelve hours by one course of Medicine.

course of Medicine.

A gentleman from Worcester, who has for many years past, during the cold season, been afflicted with the Rhenmatic fever, and obliged to keep his room from four to six weeks, came to the Infirmary with this disease upon him, and was entirely cared by two courses of Medicine. The first course relieved him of all pain and soreness, and he, who the day before came there so completely under the power of this disease that the slightest touch was agony, that the act of laying down on a soft bed was attended with such pain that he was, in the language of his attendant, obliged to do it, an inch at a time, was seen walking about the room free from all pain, feeling, as he expressed himself, in a new world, every thing about him looked new, especially was it a new way of curing disease, for he had heard but lately that such remedies were in existence, yet it heard but lately that such remedies were in existence, yet it heard but fately that such remedies were in existence, yet it was all a reality, to him a happy reality.

There were five cases of lung complaints during my occasional visits to the Infirmary. In two of these cases the Doctor gave no encouragement that he could cure, the other three were very sensibly benefited according to their own testimony. Some particulars of one of these I will give. The disease was occasioned by a cold which immediately and sensibly affected the lungs a dry backing cough came on accompanied. was occasioned by a cond which immediately and sensiony affected the lungs, a dry hacking cough came on accompanied with a constant tickling in the throat, with occasional expectoration of, at first, a greenish mucus, gradually growing darker and heavier until it assumed a grayish appearance answerable to what Physicians usually denominate pus, and in several instances mixed with blood. These were accompanied with pain in the left side, across the chest, and between the shoulders, not constant however in all these places at the the shoulders; not constant however in all these places at the same time, but changing from place to place.

This cold and its attendant symptoms as they approached were all unheeded for several weeks, as is not uncommon with those who think a common cold is a very little thing, so little as to deserve no notice; when after a time the common remedies usually recommended by friends and neighbors were tried, it was found that the disease was deeply seated, and they were altogether powerless upon it—a cure was affected by five courses, and continuing the use of such vegetable med-icines for several weeks as are usually prescribed by Dr. Thompson in such cases.

Two cases of settled fever, one of them very remarkable, were cured, each by three courses of medicines; for the particulars of these, which did not come so much under my obserticulars of these, which did not come so much under my observation as the others, and for further information respecting those given above, I would refer you and every one interested in them to Dr Thompson at the Infirmary.

You are aware I presume, sir, that the great objection to the Thomsonian system is, that it professes to cure all diseases which mankind are subject to with the same medicine. A theory, one of the cardinal points of which is, that disease is a unit, would of course propose a general remedy. Accordingly the medicines made use of in the Thomsonian practice, are few and simple: Lobelia, or the emetic herb, may be called the corner stone of the system. This, in connexion with the steam or vapor bath, and four or five other vegetable preparations, is or vapor bath, and four or five other vegetable preparations, is the sum total of Dr Thomson's remedies. But is there nothing analogous to this in the prevailing medical practice of the present day as taught in the schools, even though its advocates in order to count up the different diseases which are said to exist would have to write them by hundreds? Is it not true that five or six articles in the list of remedies may be named, (and here mercury in some of its forms would doubt-less be considered No. 1.) some one of its forms would doubt-less be considered No. 1.) some one or which the considered dealt out by the regular physician, as is the steam and lobelia by Dr Thomson? Is there not much then in the practice of the former at variance with his own theory, however, which goes directly to uphold the theory of the latter? But admit-ting Dr Thomson is in error with regard to the unity of dis-eases, and that it may be truly said "their name is legion," a host continually making war upon human life, does not the success of the remedies discovered by him, as attested by mul-

Intherto this system has been noticed by the medical profession, with few exceptions, as a fit subject only for ridcule, and has been cast aside without a hearing, as barefaced, imputing it down. Already there are multitudes who know its healing virtues too well to suffer it. putting it down. Already there are multitudes who know its healing virtues too well to suffer it thus to be driven from among men. A brighter day is 1 trust dawning upon it. It seeks not to hide itself from public scrutiny, but comes openly to all, asking only to be examined before being condemned. In conclusion, I would only add, that he who engages candidly in the investigation of the system, will find its theory of disease simple, yet supported by sound reasoning—its practice based upon, and in accordance with that theory; simple, yet effectual; and the success which has attended it wonderful beyond any thing which has preceded it in the history of medi-

In REDITOR—Permit me to occupy a small space in your valuable periodical, for the purpose of attesting to the value of the system for the correction and cure of all impediments of speech, practised by W. D. KING, who is now in this city. I was a bad stammerer from infancy—so bad, that I frequently found myself incapable of a vocal sound. About the first of March last, I put myself under the instruction of Mr King, and in three weeks, I found my otterance free from impediment—and have continued to talk freely—constantly improving—up to the present time. The experience I have had of Mr King's phylosophical method of imparting instruction, has convinced me that all who suffer from impediments of speech of any kind, can be permanently cured by obeying his directions. Respectfully yours,

J. P. LYON,

The Galvanic Apparatus, invented by Daniel Harrington, of this city, for the cure of disease, is familiarly known to us. By its aid, under Providence we have have been acceptable and another annoying disease for comfortable health. Dyspepsia, accompanied by constipation, that in our cases had resisted other remedies for years, soon yielded to this novel mode of cure, and in the course of a few weeks, our expectations were more than realized. Judging from our own experience, we are of opinion that this useful apparatus will be found innocent, where it may not prove more or less efficacious, and that it may be safely intrusted to any hands. With us its application has not been attended with any painful inconvenience at all; has not been attended with any painful inconvenience at all; nor did we find it necessary to observe, for the time being, any rigid restrictions touching diet. That there are many thousands him up to die, and said he could not live six hours. of suffering invalids in this country, who could as readily ex change disease for health, by this new mode of cure, as we change disease for health, by this have been enabled to do, we cannot for a moment doubt.

We have been using the Gaivanic Instruments, invented by Mr Daniel Harrington of this city, for a disordered condition of the digestive organs of long standing, accompanied by obsti-nate constipation, a confuse state of the head, and by general debility; and we have experienced that degree of relief that has enabled us to relinquish medicine by way of the mouth, finding the new remedy preferable—and we believe that by its aid we are gradually gaining health and strength, which was not the case previous to our using it. The application has involved neither pain or risk with us.

SPRING AND SUMMER MEDICINE.— JAUNDICE BITTERS.—Dr Warner's Purifying Bitters or Family Corrective.—In the spring of the year, every one is troubled more or less with a propensity to sleep, and by the use of this corrective it can be obviated entirely. For purifying and eradicating all kinds of humors from the blood, even if they appear externally in the face, or any part of the body; it is much better and far more efficacious than any external application; in fact I seldom knew it to fail in proving effectual. The patient will find it operates more in the blood than any other preparation they ever resorted to; it is far better than salts, sulphur, cream tartar, or any preparation of this kind, for when the blood is once purified with this corrective, it refor when the blood is once purified with this corrective, it remains in an even temperature through the summer months.—
For a foul stomach, jaundice, general debility, weakness of the limbs, want of appetite, bilious and liver complaints, headache, stupor &c &c. For the catarrh, which is generally occasioned by the impure state of the blood, there is nothing extant that has proved so efficacious as this purifying corrective. For all the above complaints it is seldom known to fail of proving an effectual remedy. It is really worth the public attention, as every one is aware of the unpleasant, dull heavy feeling, which the spring of the year produces. And by the use of this corrective, it can be obviated entirely; every one who makes use of the above preparation, will be assonished at the mild and gentle effect it has on the blood.
